Alberni Quartet Will Perform Works by Beethoven, Britten, Haydn

On Friday evening, February 12, Benjamin Britten's String Quartet No. 1 will be performed in the Coolidge Auditorium for the first time since its premiere in that hall in October 1941. The artists will be the members of the Alberni Quartet.

The Alberni Quartet, formed in 1960 at the Royal Academy of Music in London, has been closely associated with Benjamin Britten and several other contemporary British composers. Britten performed with the quartet and coached them in his String Quartet No. 1. He also obtained from Dmitri Shostakovich the scores of the Russian composer's ninth and tenth quartets, entrusting the Alberni Quartet with the Western premiere of the former and the first British performance of the latter.

The members of the Alberni Quartet are violinists Howard David and Peter Pople, violist Roger Best, and cellist David Smith. Having made numerous concert appearances in Europe, Great Britain, Australia, and the Far East, they made their first tour of the United States in 1979. They perform frequently on television and radio for the BBC and other European broadcasting corporations and have released nearly a dozen recordings. The artists are in residence at the University of Canterbury in New Zealand and for the last few years have performed a series of concerts in Western Australia. Currently they are also in residence in England at the new town of Harlow, near London.

The concert on February 12 will be sponsored by the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress. In addition to the Britten Quartet, which is dedicated to Mrs. Coolidge, the program will include the Quartet in E major, H.III:59 by Joseph Haydn and Beethoven's Quartet in F major, Op. 59, No. 1. The concert will be broadcast live over radio station WETA–FM and made available to stations in other cities by the Public Radio Cooperative, under the auspices of the Katie and Walter Louchheim Fund in the Library of Congress.

Recent Court Decision Is Reported 46

Tickets will be distributed on Monday morning, February 8, at the Patrick Hayes box office at 1330 G St. N.W. (Jordan-Kitt's), beginning at 8:30 a.m. Two tickets will be distributed to an individual, with a 25-cent service charge on each ticket. Phone orders may be placed by calling 393–4463. Mail orders are not accepted.

Recent Court Decision Reported

Following a six-day trial, Judge Joyce Green, United States District Court (District of Columbia), ruled against a Library staff member in six consolidated cases he had filed against the Library. The plaintiff alleged discrimination on the basis of age, sex, and race (white) by officers in the Copyright Office and his own area of employment, the Position Classification and Organization Office. Although these six cases were filed between April 1980 and February 1981, they related to many other administrative and judicial discrimination actions this plaintiff filed for the past eight years.

In three of these cases, the plaintiff alleged that the Library discriminated against him when he was not selected for three positions in the Copyright Office for which he applied. He was disqualified for one position because he did not have experience demonstrating ability to manage a work program involving public service and financial accountability. He was marked not qualified for another position because he lacked the requisite time-in-grade. A third position was posted limiting applicants to those employed in the Examining Division because of budgetary constraints, and the plaintiff was disqualified because he was not a staff member of that division. Judge Green found all three reasons articulated by the Library for plaintiff's nonselection to be legitimate and nondiscriminatory.

The other three cases involved plaintiff's current position. He had alleged that he had been harassed, a victim of conspiracy, and treated differently from other staff members by his supervisors on the basis of race, sex, and age. The court found some support for the proposition that the plaintiff was treated differently, but further found no basis for such treatment on race, sex, or age factors. (Ray E. Parker v. Daniel J. Boorstin, U.S.D.C., D.C., Civil Action Nos. 80–0851; 80–1840; 81–0123; 81–0217; 81–0298; and 81–0427)

Library Conducts NUC Needs Assessment Survey

The Library of Congress is in the final stages of analyzing the results of a Needs Assessment Survey for the National Union Catalog. This survey was developed to determine the preferences of the U.S. library community regarding the types of products to be offered by the Library of Congress in its proposed register and index format National Union Catalog. The new catalog will incorporate many of the present NUC-affiliated book catalogs.

The surveys were mailed in February to a sampling of 3,996 college, special, high school, and public libraries representing a universe of 29,926 libraries. Of these, 3,071 questionnaires were completed and returned.

The survey results show relative popularity of publications, formats, and frequencies. The overwhelming preference for format was microfiche.

A few of the more popular registers included the Master Register, the Audio-Visual Register, the Master Register for English-language materials only, the Music Register, Microform Masters, and the State Documents Register (to include both monographs and serials). The most popular indexes to the Master Register were Title, Name, Subject, Series, and LC Card Number.

A committee has been established within Processing Services to review the data and to make recommendations regarding the products to be published once the NUC data base is in machine-readable form. When these deliberations are concluded, further information on the status of the proposed automated register/index NUC will be made available.

STAFF NEWS

Roland Maheux Retires

Roland C. Maheux retired from the Library of Congress on January 8 after more than 35 years of Federal service. His many present and former colleagues turned out in force at a reception in the Library's Whittall Pavilion to wish him well, and to greet his wife, Pat, and their sons and daughters, who joined him for the occasion.

Roland Maheux is a native of Pittsfield, Mass. Transplanted to Maine as a child, Mr. Maheux returned there after wartime service with the U.S. Navy to attend the University of Maine. He came to Washington in 1948, joined the staff of the former Card Division, and began a career that included service in five departments of the Library of Congress. In 1976, he was promoted from assistant chief of the Stack and Reader Division to executive officer in the Research Department, and in 1978 he became staff assistant to the director for special collections, Research Services.

Mr. Maheux received a bachelor of science degree from American University in 1953 and was a graduate student there in public administration. He also attended the Washington College of Law in 1950–51.

In his informal remarks at the reception, Assistant Librarian for Research Services John C. Broderick praised Mr. Maheux's facility for getting things done.

Alan Fern, director for special collections, Research Services, presents Mr. Maheux a gift on behalf of his friends and colleagues.

Mr. Broderick recalled the swift and effective work on the moving of the Rosenwald Collection as an example of the Maheux style at its recent best. Several gifts from his colleagues were presented, along with best wishes and thanks from those who had enjoyed Mr. Maheux's company and benefited from his assistance during his long and productive career.

Margaret Monte Retires

Margaret M. Monte retired from the Library of Congress on January 8 after completing 27 years of Federal service.

Mrs. Monte began her career at the Library in September 1955 in what is now the Building Services Section of the Buildings Management Division. She worked in that section until her retirement.

Mrs. Monte will continue to reside in the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, where she was born and raised.

NLM Will Conduct Lunchtime Seminar

"Overview of the National Library of Medicine (NLM) Programs" will be the topic of the Career Development Seminar to be held at noon on Thursday, February 25, in the Staff Training and Development Office, room LM 654A. Representing NLM, Maxine Hanke, director, Region IV, Regional Medical Library Program, and Selda Futrowsky, employee development specialist, will conduct the program.

All interested staff members are invited to attend. Library employees whose attendance at this program may require time exceeding the normal lunch period should consult their supervisors.

LC Online Users Group Presents Program on REMARC Project

The dream of having the entire Library of Congress catalog available online is fast approaching reality, according to the speakers at the LC Online Users Group program on the Carrollton Press REMARC Project. Speakers at this October presentation were Pam Andre, assistant chief of the MARC Editorial Division; Virginia Vitucci and David Spaans, both of the Automated Systems Office; and Robert Zich from the Office of Planning and Development. The overflow audience heard the speakers describe the history of the project, its potential benefits to the Library of Congress, and its limitations.

Under an agreement with Carrollton Press of Arlington, Va., the Library is receiving machine-readable tapes of the Library of Congress shelflist created as a by-product of Carrollton's planned 132-volume Cumulative Title Index to the Classified Collections of the Library of Congress. For 37 cents per record, Carrollton agreed to include a number of extra pieces of information in the machine-readable record beyond those required for its own project and to provide these records to the Library chiefly for in-house use. (The 37 cents per record only partially offsets the extra keying costs for Carrollton Press.) It is anticipated that the size of the complete file will approach 5.2 million records—almost four times the present size of the MARC Books data base. The Library will receive these REMARC records over a period of four-and-a-half years, with receipt of the last records expected in 1983.

Carrollton Press is having the records keyed in Irvine, Scotland, in alphabetical order by title, and the Library's Automated Systems Office is processing them on a weekly basis through the Format Recognition program to produce LC-compatible MARC records. Current plans call for the first portion of the file to be available online within the Library early this year as a MUMS/SCORPIO file with a separate sign-on.

The MARC records produced by this collaboration will not be as full as new MARC records currently produced by the Library, but they will include LC card number, call number(s), the main entry, most of the body of the entry, and all subject and added entry tracings. The full ALA character set is being used, including all diacritics. All nonroman records will also be included in the file, but the body of the entry will be reduced to the romanized title. The records will not include notes (except the note "Romanized"), series statements unless they are traced in the same form, or Dewey Decimal numbers.

The Format Recognition program used by ASO to create the MARC content designation is accurate only about 50–75 percent of the time, perhaps less when dealing with very old records, but most of the errors are minor. Carrollton Press is editing the file, however, and the Marc Editorial Division may also do some editing as time is available. Under the terms of the agreement between the Library and Carrollton Press, the Library may distribute through the MARC Distribution Service up to 15,000 records per year that have been ungraded to MARC level. A number of questions need to be resolved before the Library actually begins such distribution.

The benefits of the project to the Library will gradually become apparent as this new data base is integrated into LOCIS, the Library of Congress Information System. Although the records will have a slightly lower information content than some other records created by the Library, the application of the retrieval capabilities of SCORPIO and MUMS, including component word searching, will provide a huge net increase in the amount of information available in the Library's systems. Future uses of the data base may include its integration into the automated shelflist, circulation, or book paging systems.

Activities of Former, Present Staff Members

In a short ceremony at the Library of Congress Office in Cairo, publisher Hilmi Murad presented to Michael Albin, field director, a copy of the Arabic translation of The Republic of Technology by Daniel J. Boorstin, The Librarian of Congress. Publication of the book in Arabic is part of the Book Program of the United States International Communications Agency (USICA). Works translated into Arabic are distributed free of charge by USICA offices in the Arab world and are also available commercially in Arab countries. Presentation of the translation of The Republic of Technology to the Cairo office was arranged at the initiative of Insaf Abadir, formerly of the staff of the Cairo office and now with the Book Program in Cairo.

The work has been submitted to the Department of Library and Information Studies, Loughborough University, Leicestershire, England, in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the M.L.S. degree. A copy is also available for research use in the Archive of Folk Culture, room LJ G152.

Alan Fern, director for special collections, Research Services, is the author of a book review entitled "Watch the Birdie! For 15 Minutes!" that appeared in the December 27 issue of The New York Times Book Review (p. 7). Dr. Fern's review discusses the recently published The American Daguerreotype by Floyd and Marion Rinhart and also recounts the history of the development and popularity of the daguerreotype.

Francis S. Wagner, a former cataloger in the Subject Cataloging Division, is the author of an 80-page book entitled Eugene P. Wigner, An Architect of the Atomic Age: Highlights of a Career with a Comprehensive Bibliography (Toronto, Ont., Rakoczi Foundation). The bibliography contains 375 entries.

On December 3, Dr. Wagner gave an informal talk at the Foreign Service Institute, U.S. Department of State, on the history of the nationality question with special regard to central and Eastern Europe. On January 10, he delivered a lecture at the National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C., on the Polish crisis.

Library Staff Offers Archives Institute Briefing

Participants in the 48th Institute in Modern Archives Administration, held in Washington, D.C., spent one day, January 13, at the Library of Congress in a program organized by the Manuscript Division.

Manuscript Division staff members who addressed the gathering were Paul T. Heffron, acting chief, who spoke on "History and Background of the Division, Acquisitions Policies and Procedures"; John D. Knowlton, head, Preparation Section, on "Organization, Description, Preservation, and Handling of Manuscript Collections"; Steven Hensen, Manuscript Division cataloger, on the division's "Use of Automatic Data Processing Techniques in Manuscript Description"; and C. Fred W. Coker, head, Reference and Reader Service Section, on "Reference and Reader Service." Alan Virta of the Manuscript Section, Descriptive Cataloging Division, spoke on The National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections. The day concluded with tours of the Manuscript Division.

The institute is administered by the National Archives and Records Service, in cooperation with the Library of Congress. Some 36 archivists and curators participated in the 48th institute, which was directed by Maygene Daniels of the National Archives.

Upcoming Meetings

ARLIS/NA to Hold 10th Anniversary Conference

Members of the Art Libraries Society of North America will convene in Boston, Mass., on February 21–24 for their 10th anniversary conference. The role of art museums in publishing, collections development in the 1980s, disaster preparedness, and utilization of microforms will be some of the subjects explored by the 400 members expected to attend. Trevor Fawcett, librarian of the University of East Anglia in England, will be the keynote speaker. Tours will be offered for members to area museums, universities, and landmarks.

On Thursday, February 25, ARLIS/NA will meet jointly with the College Art Association in New York City in a panel discussion on the role of art galleries and art dealers in the documentation of art.

Four Area Associations Plan Joint Workshop

The District of Columbia chapters of the Special Libraries Association, the American Society for Information Science, and the Law Librarians' Society and the D.C. Library Association are planning a joint spring workshop on "Working Smarter—The Application of Technology in Libraries" from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 6, at the Center for Adult Education, University of Maryland, College Park. Those participating and their announced topics include Richard DeGennaro, director of libraries, University of Pennsylvania, "Will Information Technology Be the Death of Libraries?"; Felix Krayeski, Congressional Research Service, "Integrating Technologies"; Carlos Cuadra, Larry Berul, and Judith Wanger on "Optical Videodiscs and the Document Delivery of Journal Articles"; and luncheon speaker Eugene Garfield, president, Institute for Scientific Information, "Lessons from the Past—Predicting the Impact of Information Technology." The workshop will also offer a technology fair with representatives from over 20 organizations which apply technology in libraries. APPLE, IBM, Radio Shack, TELEDON, The Source, VIDEOPATSEARCH, MICROPROBE, and CAPCON will be among those exhibiting.

Registration, which includes luncheon, should be made payable by check or purchase order in the amount of $21 to the "Joint Spring Workshop," c/o A. Bellafontaine, 1327 Monroe St. N.E., Washington, D.C. 20017. Registrations are due March 1, and no refunds will be issued on cancellations received after February 27. Because of guarantees for the caterer, no registrations can be accepted at the door.

Legal Information Session Planned

The D.C. chapter of the Special Libraries Association will hold a workshop on "Sources of Legal Information" on Wednesday, April 7, from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon in the Whittall Pavilion, Library of Congress Thomas Jefferson Building. The speakers will include Phil Berwick, head of the Law Library Reading Room, Library of Congress, and Phyllis Christianson, manager, Library Services, U.S. General Accounting Office.

The workshop is $5 for SLA members, $6 for nonmembers, and $4 for SLA student chapter members. Registrations must be received by April 5 and should be sent to Kris Vajs, 703 Chetworth Pl., Alexandria, Va. 22314, tel. (703) 549–0425 (home) or (202) 287–5812 (work). Checks should be made payable to "Washington, D.C., Chapter, SLA."

Society of History in Government Plans Annual Meeting

The Society for History in the Federal Government will hold its annual meeting at the National Archives and Records Service in Washington, D.C., on Wednesday, April 14. Society president David Trask, chief of Military History, will preside over the business meeting. This will be followed by three sessions on "Presidential Libraries," "The Effect of the Reagan Administration's Budget Policies on History in the Federal Government," and "The Ethics of Being a Federal Historian." Further information about the meeting may be obtained by writing to the Society for History in the Federal Government, Box 14139, Benjamin Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. 20044.
